About IDFR

The International Day of Family Remittances (IDFR), a universally recognized observance, was adopted by the Governing Council of the International Fund for Agricultural Development, on 16 February 2015, and later by the United Nations General Assembly (A/RES/72/281) in 2018, and marked every year on 16 June. The day recognizes the contribution of over 200 million migrants, half of them women, who send remittances home to improve the lives of their 800 million family members. Much of this money goes directly to rural areas where 80 per cent of the world’s poor live, face food shortages and the impacts of climate change.

Through the IDFR observance, the United Nations aims to bring greater awareness of the impact that remittances have on millions of households, entire communities and countries. The IDFR also calls upon governments, private sector entities and civil society to contribute to maximizing the impact of remittances through individual and collective actions.

The IDFR is fully recognized at the global level and included as one of the key initiatives to implement the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration (Objective 20) that calls for the reduction of remittance transfer costs and greater financial inclusion through remittances. By recognizing the transformative impact that remittances have across families, entire communities and countries, the IDFR also promotes the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and furthers the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.
Over one billion people are directly impacted by remittances annually, either as senders or as recipients. Seventy-five per cent of annual remittance flows address the immediate needs of recipients in terms of food security, access to health, education, housing and sanitation. The remaining 25 per cent is either saved, invested, or used to set up businesses, among others.

Linking remittances to financial services and products, matched with adequate and gender-sensitive digital and financial literacy that are accessible to all, is key to leveraging these flows for sustainable development.
Resolution adopting the International Day of Family Remittances

Resolution adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on 12 June 2018

A/RES/72/281

Sponsors of the Resolution: Algeria, Australia, Bangladesh, Bolivia (Plurinational State of), Brazil, Canada, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Ghana, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Jamaica, Madagascar, Malawi, Mexico, Morocco, Myanmar, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Paraguay, Philippines, Republic of Moldova, Russian Federation, Samoa, Singapore, Sudan, Thailand, Timor-Leste, Tunisia, Uruguay and Viet Nam.

The General Assembly, Recalling its resolutions 53/199 of 15 December 1998 and 61/185 of 20 December 2006 on the proclamation of international years, and Economic and Social Council resolution 1980/67 of 25 July 1980 on international years and anniversaries, particularly paragraphs 1 to 10 of the annex thereto on the agreed criteria for the proclamation of international years, as well as paragraphs 13 and 14, in which it is stated that an international day or year should not be proclaimed before the basic arrangements for its organization and financing have been made,

Reaffirming its resolution 70/1 of 25 September 2015, entitled “Transforming our world: the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development”, in which it adopted a comprehensive, far-reaching and people-centred set of universal and transformative Sustainable Development Goals and targets, its commitment to working tirelessly for the full implementation of the Agenda by 2030, its recognition that eradicating poverty in all its forms and dimensions, including extreme poverty, is the greatest global challenge and an indispensable requirement for sustainable development, its commitment to achieving sustainable development in its three dimensions – economic, social and environmental – in a balanced and integrated manner, and to building upon the achievements of the Millennium Development Goals and seeking to address their unfinished business,

Reaffirming also its resolution 69/313 of 27 July 2015 on the Addis Ababa Action Agenda of the Third International Conference on Financing for Development, which is an integral part of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, supports and complements it, helps to contextualize its means of implementation targets with concrete policies and actions, and reaffirms the strong political commitment to address the challenge of financing and creating an enabling environment at all levels for sustainable development in the spirit of global partnership and solidarity,

Recalling its resolution 71/237 of 21 December 2016 on international migration and development, in which it noted the adoption of resolution 189/XXXVIII by the Governing Council of the International Fund for Agricultural Development, on 16 February 2015, in which the Governing Council proclaimed 16 June as the International Day of Family Remittances,

Welcoming the work of the International Fund for Agricultural Development to develop and promote innovative investment mechanisms to increase the development impact of remittances and diaspora investment for sustainable development, including through the Global Forum on Remittances, Investment and Development, bringing together representatives of the private and public sectors and of civil society,

Considering that in many developing countries international remittances constitute an important source of income for poor families and are projected to exceed a cumulative 6.5 trillion United States dollars, of which half will reach rural areas, during the 2015–2030 time frame for achieving the Sustainable Development Goals,
Resolution adopting the International Day of Family Remittances

Noting that 1 billion people are directly impacted by remittances annually, either as senders or as recipients, and that 75 per cent of annual remittance flows go to meet the immediate needs of recipients and the remainder – over 100 billion dollars a year – is either saved or invested,

Recognizing the transformative impact that remittances, including those from migrants, have across the Sustainable Development Goals and in supporting long-term development strategies, particularly on poverty reduction and access to basic services at the household level, and that remittances foster local investments that can encourage entrepreneurship and financial inclusion, especially in rural areas of developing countries where poverty rates are highest, and in times of crisis and disaster,

Conscious that millions of families in rural areas are also supported by domestic remittances sent by family members typically living in urban locations,

Recognizing the work done by Member States, the United Nations system, the World Bank and the Group of 20 and the role of civil society organizations in promoting the development impact of migration and family remittances,

Recognizing also the role of the private sector in developing cost-effective and accessible money transfer services, including by linking them to other financial services for remittance senders and their families, and the role of all relevant stakeholders in realizing by 2030 the objective of target 10.c of Sustainable Development Goal 10, to reduce to less than 3 per cent the transaction costs of migrant remittances and eliminate remittance corridors with costs higher than 5 per cent,

Acknowledging that innovative digital technologies such as mobile money transfers can effectively reduce the cost of the transfer of remittances, which enables efficiency and cost savings for senders and recipients of remittances,

1. Decides to proclaim 16 June the International Day of Family Remittances;
2. Invites all Member States, organizations of the United Nations system and other international and regional organizations, as well as civil society, including non-governmental organizations, individuals, the private sector and academia, to observe and actively support the International Day in an appropriate manner and in accordance with national priorities, in order to raise awareness of the impact of remittances;
3. Calls upon the International Fund for Agricultural Development to facilitate the observance of the International Day, including through the Global Forum on Remittances, Investment and Development and mindful of the provisions contained in the annex to Economic and Social Council resolution 1980/67;
4. Stresses that the cost of all activities that may arise from the implementation of the present resolution should be met from voluntary contributions;
5. Requests the Secretary-General to bring the present resolution to the attention of Member States, the organizations of the United Nations system and all relevant stakeholders for observance.

The #FamilyRemittances Campaign 2020–2030

The IDFR Campaign aims at ensuring engagement for the observance and dissemination of resulting actions in the framework of the decennial #FamilyRemittances campaign 2020–2030: Support one billion people to reach their own SDGs.

In the timeframe of the #FamilyRemittance Campaign, through a spotlight on yearly themes aligned to the global development agenda, the IDFR campaign intends to strengthen and guide stakeholders on the new trends and priorities that maximize the impact of remittances among vulnerable people in rural areas, where these flows count the most.

Supporting one billion people reach their own SDGs

#FamilyRemittances2030

International Day of Family Remittances

16 JUNE
The International Day of Family Remittances (IDFR) draws our attention to the economic impact of remittances on households, communities and nations, recognizing the sacrifice, separation and generosity often involved. By 2030, it is projected that over US$5 trillion will be sent home by migrants to low- and middle-income countries (LMICs), with much of this money going directly to rural areas where 80 per cent of the world’s poor live, facing food shortages and the impacts of climate change.

The IDFR campaign aims at ensuring support for the observance and dissemination of resulting actions in the framework of the decennial #FamilyRemittances Campaign 2020–2030: Support one billion people to reach their own SDGs.

On this IDFR, we not only acknowledge the contributions made by migrants but also reflect on and celebrate the work, collaboration and partnerships involved by so many, including financial service providers, money transfer operators, governments, international organizations, and regulators to facilitate these flows and the significant achievements made.

Over the past decade, there has been a transformation for many of us in the way we send and receive cross-border money transfers, with significant improvements in the affordability, access and convenience of services, as well as the broader financial services available to us.

However, this is not the case for everyone. Significant barriers to digital remittance and financial services still exist for many people, especially among the most marginalized and those living in rural areas.

The theme of the 2023–2024 #FamilyRemittances campaign, Digital remittances towards financial inclusion and cost reduction, draws our attention to the positive effects of digitalization in reducing the costs of sending money home, improving access, and advancing financial inclusion.
Aligning with the SDG Universal Value to Leaving No One Behind, our primary focus remains on achieving inclusivity and access to digital remittance and financial services. We need to make sure that the same benefits we have seen for many are available to all.

Join us, and let us work together, one family at a time, to digitize remittances towards financial inclusion and cost reduction, and to leave no one behind.

On 16 June 2024:

We recognize the contributions made by migrants all over the world to their families, friends, communities, and countries through the money they send home, thus helping families to reach their own SDGs.

We, on behalf of all the receivers of remittances, extend our gratitude and recognize the sacrifice, separation and generosity that are often involved in sending money home.

We recognize and commend all those involved for the significant achievements that have been made in and around international and domestic remittances to facilitate affordable, safe, secure, transparent, fast and convenient remittance services.

We pledge to continue to work in partnership and collaboratively to leave no one behind – to digitalize remittances towards financial inclusion and cost reduction.
Celebrating the successes

- Remittance costs have come down – Since 2009, the average cost of sending remittances has decreased from 9.7 per cent to 6.2 per cent of the send amount (based on sending US$200 equivalent).

  Note: Figures for the global average were adjusted in Q1 2014 following a clean-up of the entire database. Some values slightly vary from figures published prior to Q1 2014. Source: https://remittanceprices.worldbank.org/sites/default/files/rpw_main_report_and_annex_q323_1101.pdf

- Digital remittance services are cheaper – The cost of sending money using digital channels (from/to bank accounts, cards and mobile wallets) is on average cheaper at 4.6 per cent of the send amount.

- The gender gap in terms of accessing digital remittance and financial services has narrowed. Efforts to narrow the gender gap in account ownership have paid off since 2017. The gender gap in account ownership across developing economies has fallen to 6 percentage points from 9 percentage points where it hovered for many years.

Access to digital remittance and financial services globally has significantly improved – Financial inclusion of adults globally, in terms of account ownership, has increased globally from 51 per cent to 76 per cent between 2011 and 2021, allowing many people to access cheaper digital remittance services. Remittances are a valuable use-case to drive financial inclusion.

Still work to do to “Leave No One Behind”

- SDG10.c is not on track for 2030 – SDG 10.c to reduce the remittance costs to less than 3 per cent by 2030 has not yet been met, and based on the current trajectory will only reach 4.5 per cent by 2030.

- There are regional variations in remittance pricing – The average cost of sending remittances to and within regions varies across the world, with 14 per cent of corridors still over 10 per cent of the send amount.

- Globally, 1.4 billion adults are still unbanked and therefore unable to access digital remitting service.

4/ Based on 2009–2023 data; an average fall of 0.25 per year.
• Most unbanked adults worldwide are women.⁶ There are 135 million female adult migrants globally (International Migrant Stock, 2020) Remittances reach an estimated 400 million women every year.

• Gender, income, age, the education, and the workforce gaps remain in every region around the world.⁷

• The rural–urban account ownership gap varies widely by economy.⁸

• About 33 per cent of the global population remains unconnected to the internet.⁹

• Around 760 million people worldwide do not have access to electricity.¹⁰

• Close to 40 per cent of adults in LICs do not have an ID.¹¹

RAISE AWARENESS

Through your digital platforms, raise and spread awareness of the crucial role played by migrants and the importance of remittances in achieving the SDGs.

You can find social media products and messages, a media toolkit, and the IDFR graphics and logos to prepare communication materials to promote the campaign and the IDFR on the IDFR 2024 Trello and do not forget to tag us on X and LinkedIn.

You are encouraged to take part in the global discussion by using the hashtag #familyremittances.

ENDORSE THE IDFR AND THIS YEAR’S CAMPAIGN

We warmly invite the public sector, private sector, international organizations and civil society to endorse the IDFR 2024. This year we are focussing on celebrating the achievements made in digitalizing remittances towards cost reduction and financial inclusion, whilst taking stock of what remains to be done to leave no one behind. In light of this, please endorse the campaign by:

a) Sharing your role and successes, over the last decade, especially in:
   Digitalizing remittances, supporting financial inclusion, supporting cost reduction of remittances, and improving access to remittance and financial services.

b) Sharing your plans and commitment to the above four outcomes, in line with the SDG’s central, transformative promise to “Leaving No One Behind”.

c) Sharing your personal stories about how you have supported others or been supported or impacted by remittances.
THE UPCOMING IDFR OBSERVANCE

Through the IDFR observance, the United Nations aims to bring greater awareness of the impact that remittances have on millions of households, entire communities and countries. The IDFR also calls upon governments, private sector entities and civil society to contribute to maximizing the impact of remittances through individual and collective actions.

This year, IFAD will host a series of concurrent events leading up to and commemorating the IDFR.

Observance events will take place as follows:
